Anastasia

28 mm · Hardened 24-karat yellow gold

Design rendering

I can count on myself

I used to wait for someone to tell me I was ready. Then I started making my own decisions and standing by them. I’d choose this watch for myself. Every time I put it on, I’d remember what it took to be able to say that.

The colour of a glance

Anastasia takes its palette from an iris that moves between warm hazel and deep green. The design brings those tones together in a single gemstone at twelve. The stone is intended to sit against the cream dial with its outline clear of a continuous gold border.

The design carries the A.R. dial arrangement into the women’s format. The signature sits below the stone, with small seconds at six. The illustrated dark-green leather takes its colour from the stone.

Gemstone selection will determine the final colour balance. The dial, case and presentation images show the current design direction.
